

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON:
WEDNESDAY, MARCH 24, 1886

A good stock of store fixtures, gas fixtures, etc., can be had cheap at the Crystal Palace.

The East Portland Vindicator is improving every week and is one of the most readable newspapers on the list.

There will be a special school meeting in the school house in district No. One, on the evening of Saturday, April 3rd, to elect two school directors.

The "Portland grain and stock exchange" is done and the caller's occupation is gone. The fact of its early demise is eloquent in praise of the good sense of the business men of that city.

The local assembly of the Knights of Labor have established a free labor bureau, with headquarters at T. G. Rawlings' store. Any person wishing employment or desiring to employ white labor can leave name and address at his place of business.

A telegram was yesterday received from the treasury officials at Washington to the effect that it would be several days before a decision would be arrived at regarding the acceptance of the bid of $3,200 for the Shubrick at the sale last Saturday.

Simpson & Co., have sold the Norfolk to the Cutting Packing Co. She will be taken to the company's cannery in Alaska. A new boiler has been placed in the vessel and she is well fitted for the work. The Lillian will continue in the Knappton trade. It is reported that the price paid was $8,500.

A gentleman lately removing to the eastern part of the city said that there was one relief; that he wouldn't "have to listen to that confounded school bell any longer." It is a nuisance, that's a fact, but there seems to be no help for it. "What can't be cured must be endured," says the old proverb.

The entertainment at the Congregational church, last evening, was well attended, and high praise was accorded the ladies and gentlemen who took part. The music, both vocal and instrumental, was thoroughly enjoyed, and the recitations were also the subject of favorable comment.

It has been seven months since there was a fire in this city that required the services of the fire department. It is sincerely hoped that it may be seventy-seven more, though when they are needed no department in the northwest can equal our Astoria companies for promptness and efficiency.

The board of directors of the Oregon state firemen's association will meet at the St. Charles hotel in Portland, at four o'clock on the afternoon of Friday next, the 26th inst. If the members from Albany and Roseburg are not present the meeting will be postponed till eleven o'clock the next morning.

A meeting of school directors of school district No. One was held yesterday afternoon. E. W. Tallant handed in his resignation. So did N. Clinton. Miss Habersham, Miss Trenchard, Miss Mary Garner and Miss Annie Garner made application for positions as teachers for the term beginning some time next fall.

The state press is discussing the prohibition question in an intelligent manner. The subject has been written upon so much that it seems hardly possible to think of anything new to say about it. The whole thing, boiled down, seems to be a matter of theory vs. practice and experience. Some of the advocates of prohibition appear to be in earnest. With others of them it appears to be a "good enough Morgan till after the election."

Some of the young ladies of Walla Walla have formed an association the cardinal principal of which is a refusal to allow the privilege of their company to any young man who uses tobacco or liquor in any form. Some of the young men of that burg have formed a subsequent association, which has for its keystone the intent to ignore the existence of any girl there who uses bangles, bustles or cosmetics. The question is whether it will be a boycott or a girl caught. (Copyright: all rights reserved.)

The spring ground of would-be candidates for state offices seems to be fully up to the usual numbers. The most of those nominated by the several newspapers don't really care for the position, but a little persistent coaxing might overcome their coy and becoming reluctance. The candidate that is sold in the anti-Chinese question, in harmony with the prohibition movement, all right with "the boys," a good fellow generally, able to poll the vote of his party, never did anything that some one did or didn't like, that writes no letters and is dumb in three different languages stands the best show to be among the chosen.

The Salt Lake Democrat says the experience of a large number of Central Pacific west bound passengers last Saturday, is not apt to help the ticket scalpers in their present boom in cheap fares across the country. The detectives on the train took up a large number of low rate tickets which had been purchased of ticket scalpers, and after proving that the holders were not the parties who had bought the tickets originally from the railway people, they insisted in every case on the passengers paying full fare. The detection was accomplished by getting the passengers to sign their names, and then by comparison with the original signature of the ticket purchaser.

An ordinance regulating the storage of combustibles within the city limits was passed under suspension of the rules.

An ordinance increasing the allowance of Astoria Engine Co. No. 1 and Reacoe Engine Co. No. 2, from March 1st, 1886, to September 1st, 1886, was passed under suspension of the rules. (The ordinance increases the monthly allowance of each company $20 for the time specified.)

An ordinance extending the time for improvement of West 9th street to May 1st, '86, was passed under suspension of the rules.

Ordinances granting liquor licenses to Lundberg & Hansen, Geo. Gorlier and Chas. Gratke were passed under suspension of the rules.

An ordinance for the preservation of health and the prevention of disease, was read third time and passed. The matter of the communication of Geo. W. Home asking that the city pay the interest on the $5,000 bond given to the Clatsop Mill Co., in payment for Ferral street, came up for discussion. The mayor and five councilmen in turn expressed their opinion to the effect that the city refuse to pay the interest. On motion of Councilman Sover further discussion of the matter was indefinitely postponed.

The following bills were ordered paid: R. L. Jeffrey, $32.70; N. E. Goodell, $6; J. A. Montgomery, $19.50; Jack-ins & Owens, $13.85; Astoria Gas-light Co., $5.50, $123.75; Oregon Improvement Co., $8; N. D. Raymond, $12; M. Dillon, $66.57; Jas. Gardiner, $12; R. R. Marion, $2; M. Powers, $7.20; Griffin & Reed, $4.25.

The council here took a recess of ten minutes and went into executive session.

Upon reassembling a resolution was read in which the auditor and clerk was instructed to give notice ordering the improvement of Ferral, Cedar and Jefferson streets. The resolution was lost by a vote of three yeas to three nays.

After some further remarks regarding amendment of city charters, etc., council adjourned.

Collision in the Willamette.

Between 3 and 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon a collision occurred near the mouth of the Willamette between the steamers S. G. Reed and Lurline. The former was coming up the river and desired to transfer some Vancouver passengers to the Lurline. Both boats were backing, to enable the transfer to be made, when owing to the strong wind, the Lurline struck the Reed heavily on the starboard side, carrying away the guard from the companionway to the bow, also the stanchions of the promenade deck. After much difficulty the transfer was made. A force were at work on the Reed, last night, repairing the damage. —Portland News, 22.

Very Low Freight.

As an illustration of the cheapness with which foreign coal can be brought here, it is said that vessels have been chartered to load at Sydney for 5s per ton. —S. F. Comm. News, 19.

The St. Louis Knights of Labor claim that the Missouri Pacific officials are to blame for the present trouble. H. M. Hoxie, the vice president of that company makes similar statement regarding the Knights. He refused an offer of arbitration from Grand Master Workman Powderly.

A REMINISCENCE.

Capt. J. M. Frazier, was an officer on the ex-U.S. light ship Shubrick, on the trip from Philadelphia to this coast. He was also an officer on the steamer Central America (originally the old George Law, known to all New Yorkers) when she was wrecked. The captain also crossed the plains in 1849, but had returned east previous to having had the two former adventures. In connection with the loss of the Central America the old gentleman relates a very strange circumstance which brought about the rescue of the remaining passengers of the ill-fated steamer, the captain of which named Herndon, was drowned at that time. It seems some Norwegian barque was sailing in the vicinity, but not in sight of the wreck, when her captain, who was taking his watch on deck, was hit in the face by a "booby." It hit him a third time, and he struck it with his hand and it fell to the deck. This he considered as a warning, and at that moment the mate coming to relieve him, he was told of the circumstance. The captain pointed to the disabled bird and remarked that some one was in distress near them, and for the mate to alter the course of the ship. This was done and before many hours the wrecked people were picked up. On enquiring of the captain his reasons for believing the accident to the bird was a warning, he said that such an accident had occurred to his father with a like result, and like most sailors he believed in signs, and, as it resulted, he thanked God he did. Captain Frazier states this as a fact, and he is entitled to be credited as he is a truthful man. Now who can account for this strange occurrence? We cannot, but we believe it nevertheless. —Olympia Partisan.

Had a Convenient Memory.

What Jacob Sharp didn't know has its parallel in the case of a man at Columbus, Ohio. The lawyer asked, "What did you say to your wife about the matter?" "Don't remember." "Was she home that day?" "Can't say." "Did you see her that week?" "Can't recollect." "Have you seen her this year?" "Can't say. The fact is, I don't keep a diary, and I never try to remember anything over night." "Are you a married man?" persisted the lawyer. "Eh? Married? I wouldn't like to answer that without consulting my son William."

THE RETIRING MAJOR-GENERAL.

Major-General Pope, United States army, who entered the service as a cadet in the military academy at West Point, July 3, 1838, from Kentucky, was, on the 16th inst., retired from active service in the United States army, on account of age, and in accordance with congressional enactments.

General Pope was made captain in 1856, and served as such until 1861, when he was made brigadier-general of volunteers. In March, 1862, he was made major-general of volunteers, and in July brigadier-general in the regular army. On the 26th of October, 1862, he was created a major-general in the regular army, and as such he served up to this date. He was brevetted first lieutenant in 1846, for gallant and meritorious conduct in the several conflicts at Monterey, Mexico; captain in 1847, for the same character and conduct in the battle of Buena Vista, and in 1855 a major-general for gallant and meritorious services at the capture of island No. 10, in the Mississippi river. His war record was a good one, and his services earned the gratitude of every lover of the Union cause.

General Pope contemplates living in Cincinnati and making that city his future home. His pay as retired major-general amounts to the sum of $5,665 per annum, or $468.75 per month, during his natural life.

THE ORIGIN OF THE JERSEY.

By the way, let me tell you about the jersey—the close-fitting sack, you know. The Princess of Wales has an exceedingly good figure. She wants novelties, of course, like other ladies; and one spring we made her a jacket of finely-knitted silk, frogged or braided with gold across the front. It made a sensation. None of the other ladies knew what it was, nor could exactly make it out. She said she liked it very much, and she received from me a promise not to make another like it in a year. Very well. In a month or two I was over on the Prince's yacht at Cowes, and he came and sat down by me and turned the talk on ladies' gowns. I saw something was on his mind, and I wondered what he was going to say. "That close jacket fits the Princess beautifully," was what it was. Of course, I expressed my great pleasure. "And I wish you would make one more," he suggested at last. I told him my promise to her highness. "Yes," said he, laughing, "I know; but I will take the responsibility, and will make it all right with her. It is for Mrs. Langtry." We made the garment, and it was such a success on its wearer that we called it the "jersey." Since then millions have been made, all the way from $100 apiece to 25 cents.

GOING INTO PITTSBURG AT NIGHT.

A great yellowish white speck low down in the distant horizon ahead is the first sight one sees of Pittsburgh. That speck is a flame forty or fifty feet long and half as wide. It is the advertisement of a gentleman's furnishing-goods store on Smithfield Street, the Broadway of Pittsburgh. The enterprising brothers who keep the store had a figure of "Liberty Enlightening the World" in the corner of their great new building, and when natural gas invaded the city they took the cumbersome Bartholdian imitation of a fire-brand in her hand, substituted twenty feet of gas-pipe for it, tapped the main in the middle of the street, and now they send a man up a ladder every night, and he lights a match and raises it to the pipe—and bang! a section of the city is lighted as if by part of outdoors. And there over the city this great balloon-shaped blaze sways and pulsates in the wind all night roaring like a giant's furnace. Just so the river side is illuminated by two great flames that jut from ordinary little tubes sticking out of Duquesne Heights. It is wonderful to see the wind catch one of these masses of flame and wrestle with it and bear it down and roll it over and bite great yellow and white pieces from it and fling it away, patches of fire that look as if they were going to float along and keep their shape while as whirls of steam do, but instantly they are gone. This natural gas carries no odor with it. You cannot detect its presence even when the air is laden with it. It leaks from the mains in the Pittsburgh streets, and, finding a vein of sand, penetrates to the cellars of near houses. Several times it has happened that a resident has gone down in the cellar of his house to look for something, has lighted a match there, and has seemed to become the center of a convulsion of nature which has wrecked all the windows, cracked the walls, and blown the doors off their hinges. In some of the mills and in the lot where the new jail is going up, the gas jets burn forever. There is at least one town or city in this region where the street lights are never put out, because it would be a waste of money to hire a lamplighter after the original lighting.
